Representatives of Press of Entire World Held at Gun-Point

HITLER GIVES PLAN

Thousands Hear His Determination To Make Austria A "Stronghold of Nazidom"

By International News Service

Imprisoned at gunpoint by Nazi guards, 55 foreign journalists, representing the press of the entire world, were held at the foreign office in Vienna today just before Adolf Hitler formally proclaimed the Austro-German union in Hero's Square.

Developments in the international situation:

Vienna—Before countless thousands, Hitler announced his determination to make Austria a "stronghold of Nazidom," as his lieutenants continued their sweeping "purge" of Jews and oppositionists.

Rome—A high government official revealed to International News Service "that Premier Mussolini permitted Hitler to march into Austria unchallenged to save the peace of Europe."

London—Tension between Berlin and London mounted and Britain launched into war preparations on a scale unequalled since 1914.

Vatican City—In a thinly-veiled attack on aggression, Pope Pius pledged the church to a never-ending fight on war-like preparations.

Government Starts Trial Of Alleged Liquor Ring

Thomas J. South, Yardley's former police chief, is among those arraigned before Judge Albert B. Maris in the U. S. District Court in Philadelphia, charged with participation in a $200,000 bootleg liquor ring. It is alleged that the Government was mulcted out of millions of dollars between 1934 and 1935.

Twenty of the defendants pleaded guilty while a jury was being selected, and 10 others pleaded nolo contendere. While many of the others refused counsel, 21 different lawyers have entered their appearance for individual defendants.

The jury, consisting of six men and six women, was completed late yesterday afternoon.

The defendants, said to be former employees of a well-known distilling company manufacturing medicinal alcohol and its bootlegger contacts, embraced in their syndicate operations extending into Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Connecticut and Delaware.

Well-known figures from Philadelphia involved in the trial include Pepper, Fitzwater street, near 8th; Benny Fogel, Walnut street, near 47th, and Tom J. South, former police chief at Yardley.

Those who are reported to have pleaded nolo contendere are: Antonio Di Stefano, Joseph Genco, Joseph Lentine, Alessio Lanza, Bristol.

"Red Letter" Program Is Promised By The Fathers

The Fathers Varieties show which will be given on the evening of April 1st, promises to be a "red letter" night of entertainment for the people of Bristol and vicinity. The Fathers Association stages a show every year, and the proceeds are given to some worthy project of the schools. This year the association is sponsoring as one project, athletic equipment for the grade schools.

The program of entertainment will include a minstrel by students coached by Mr. Quigley; gymnastic exhibition drill by boys coached by Stephen Juenger; exhibition of latest dances by girls coached by Miss Margaret Pope; one-act play by dramatic club of the high school, coached by Miss Gladys Hewitt. There will also be an act by a magician.

Tickets are on sale by all members of the association. An orchestra has been engaged for dancing after the show.

Funeral Services For Harry E. Gamble, Tomorrow

Funeral services for the late Harry E. Gamble will be held from his residence, State Road, Croydon, tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. Interment will be in the Bristol Cemetery and friends may call this evening. Mr. Gamble was an employee of the Rohm & Haas Company.

Mr. Gamble died very suddenly Sunday afternoon at about 5:20 while working in the yard of his home. He had been swinging a sledge, breaking some rock, when he was stricken. Members of his family rushed him to the hospital of Dr. J. Fred Wagner but he had died. It is presumed that a heart attack was the cause of death.

DAUGHTER IS ILL

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Sasse, 629 Pine street, is quite ill at her home.

Upper Bucks County Man Ends Life By Hanging

PERKASIE, Mar. 15—A resident of Hagersville, two miles east of this borough, ended his life by hanging, Sunday. The man is H. Raymond Krohn, painting and paper-hanging contractor, who committed suicide in a garage on his property while his wife and daughter and son were at church services.

Dr. Clayton Moyer, coroner of Bucks county, issued a certificate saying that Krohn, who was 48, "committed suicide while deranged."

Krohn was not in the house when his wife, Mabel, 45, and their children, Luther, 15, and Marie, 11, returned from church shortly afterwards. Luther went to the garage and found his father hanging from a rope attached to a rafter.

Krohn was engaged in business at Hagersville for 25 years.

CIVIL-EQUITY TERM OF COURT GETS UNDER WAY

Two Suits Being Heard At This Term Are Results Of Accidents

OTHER COURT MATTERS

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 15—The March term of Bucks county civil and equity court opened yesterday before Judges Hiram H. Keller and Calvin S. Boyer.

In Judge Boyer's Court, trial started in an uncontested case in which the defendant made no appearance. Vard V. Transue, 29, of Washington Crossing, by his father, J. Elmer Transue, and J. Elmer Transue in his own right, are the plaintiffs. The defendant is Weinmann's Garage, a corporation.

Isaac J. Vanartsdalen, of the firm of Vanartsdalen & Biester, in his opening to the jury, stated that the plaintiff seeks damages for injuries received on December 23, 1933, while he was riding a motorcycle on Yardley Road, going home from Trenton. Garfield Tomlinson was fatally injured in this accident. The defendant's car, plaintiff counsel stated, was driven by a drunken colored man.

In Judge Keller's Court, trial started today in the case of Mahlon Feinberg, of Allentown, against Clarence B. Shelly and Howard B. Shelly. The plaintiff seeks damages for injuries alleged to have been suffered in an automobile accident on the Bethlehem pike on February 21, 1936. The accident occurred near Quakertown.

Feinberg is represented by I. Louis Rubin, Bristol, and Senator Clarence J. Buckman, Langhorne. The defendant is represented by Thomas Ross and John Ross, of Doylestown.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY

County Agent William F. Greenawalt announced that two poultry talks will be given by C. O. Dossin, poultry specialist, of Pennsylvania State College, on Wednesday, March 16th.

At 2 o'clock at Great Swamp Grange Hall, Spinnerstown, the first talk will be given by Mr. Dossin.

The second talk will be given at 8 o'clock at the egg auction building in Doylestown.

All poultrymen are welcome. County Agent Greenawalt said.

The life of an infant was saved in the Quakertown Community Hospital, Wednesday night. About one month ago the hospital received an infant respirator donated by Mrs. J. Howard Ozias.

When a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hendricks, 306 Erie avenue, Telford, in the hospital on Wednesday evening, the infant was placed in the respirator where it remained for about one hour.

Had it not been for the respirator, the infant could not have lived. The child is normal in every respect, and is reported doing well.

This was the first time the respirator was used.

OLD TOWN HALL AGAIN IS CENTER OF CONTROVERSY; NEARLY 200 RESIDENTS WANT IT REMOVED, WHILE CO. HISTORICAL SOCIETY URGES ITS PRESERVATION

The old Town Hall building is again the center of a controversy and last night this controversy was carried to the floor of Borough Council. A petition was presented after being signed by nearly 170 residents, either in the vicinity of the building or else having interests in that section. The petition asks for the removal of the building either by demolishing or moving to another location.

On the other hand the Bucks County Historical Society wrote Borough Council asking that the building be preserved.

On motion of William H. H. Fine, first ward councilman, the petition was referred to the finance and public property committee for consideration. After this motion had been unanimously carried several of the councilmen expressed themselves upon the subject.

Councilman Pfeifer was of the opinion that the building should be taken down. Councilman Myers said: "It is in the way of traffic." Councilman Warner told council that the traffic engineers who had made a survey of the Mill street area recommended that the building be removed.

It was at this point that Councilman Spring asked if there was a letter in the hands of the secretary from the Bucks County Historical Society. Mr. Spring was advised that such a letter had been received and that it would be read.

In the opinion of Councilman Foster, the old Town Hall is a menace to traffic and should be removed. Councilman Galzerano told council that 40 years ago perhaps the building was all right, but that now as a matter of safety it should be removed and aid in the beautification of the town. "It's only dead wood," he concluded.

The building at present is occupied as a base by the Bristol seascouts.

Present Petition To Council Asking Removal Of The Old Town Hall

The petition favoring the removal or demolishing of the old town hall reads as follows:

To the Honorable, the Burgess and President and Members of Town Council of the Borough of Bristol, Bucks County, Pennsylvania:

The petition of the undersigned

RESPECTFULLY REPRESENTS:

1. Your Petitioners are all citizens, residents, taxpayers and electors of the said Borough of Bristol, or parties in interest.

2. That your Petitioners are vitally interested in the progress and development of the Borough and welfare of its citizens.

3. That Market street has always been a much-travelled street. After its reconstruction and resurfacing it became a very heavily travelled street, frequently congested by travel and

Bucks County Historical Society Urges That Building Be Preserved

The letter from the Bucks County Historical Society reads as follows:

Doylestown, Pa., March 8, 1938

Borough Council, Bristol, Pa.

Gentlemen:

We have recently learned of a movement to tear down the old Town Hall in Bristol. Without knowing any of the economic or traffic conditions that may make this move desirable, I would urge your careful consideration before destroying this unique old building.

It has stood for 107 years, and we feel sure you will not need the urging of a few interested persons, but will preserve this landmark until the general welfare of the whole public requires otherwise.

Yours truly,
HORACE M. MANN,
Secretary.

HOLD BRISTOL MAN IN FATAL ACCIDENT CASE

Charles H. Oliver, Bath Street, Reported As Driver of Car Killing Man

ACCIDENT IN FRANKFORD

Charles H. Oliver, 20, Bath street, Bristol, is reported to have fatally injured a Torresdale resident last night when the latter was allegedly struck by a car operated by Oliver in Frankford.

The Torresdale youth, Emil Kuchtrick, 17, was employed as a caretaker at the Academy of Sacred Heart, Grant and Frankford avenues, Torresdale. It is stated that Kuchtrick was about to board a trolley car at Aubrey street and Frankford avenue, when he was struck by the Oliver machine.

Patrick McMenamen, 18, and May Rada, 18, accompanying Kuchtrick, escaped injury.

Oliver was held as the driver of the car.

Mrs. Stanley Wilson and daughter Elaine, New Hyde Park, N. Y., were guests last week of Mrs. Damon Bennett, Swain street.

MISS HUGHES PRESENTS SUBJECT FOR W. C. T. U.

Several Members Take Part In "Union Signal" Program At Radcliffe St. Home

SKIT IS PRESENTED

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union met at the home of Miss Martha C. Hughes, 601 Radcliffe street, last evening, with Mrs. Harry H. Headley presiding. Mrs. William Duhamel, in the absence of Mrs. Ada B. Sands, leader of religious activities of the society, made an appeal for more consecrated devotion to Christian Democracy, which teaches the sacredness of personality as opposed to the militaristic nature of the more recent form of government running rampant in Europe.

The special subject considered was the "Union Signal," the official organ of the society, presented by Miss Hughes. "This journal of social welfare presents weekly a world-wide review of human interest record of effort."

KINGS THEATRE GUILD PLANS FOR SUMMER

Numerous Activities Are Discussed at Meeting Held Friday Evening

TREAS. MAKES REPORT

ANDALUSIA, Mar. 15—Reports on club activities and plans for the coming summer season were made when the King's Theatre Guild held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Dorothy Settle, Edgewood avenue, Friday evening.

A group of tentative productions for the summer season were presented by the play committee, and although no definite plays were scheduled, the following will probably be in the list of those that are produced: "Abie's Irish Rose," "Spooky Tavern," "Night Must Fall," "She Stoops To Conquer" and "The Fool."

The treasurer's report, given by John Ferguson, indicated the most favorable balance since the organization of the Guild in 1934.

The Guild is still negotiating for a playhouse, with the selections narrowing down to two prospective places. Definite action is expected by the next monthly meeting.

The program committee reported on plays given by the Guild in the past few weeks. The production, "Husband Wanted," by Maxwell Anderson, which was presented at the Northeast District B. Y. P. U. banquet in Bustleton, was reported an outstanding success. The same comedy was also presented before a dinner meeting of the Torresdale Dramatics Club at the Torresdale Country Club and it was well received by this group. The most recent endeavor was the presentation of a play by Guild members in connection with the Cultural Olympics of the University of Pennsylvania. This play was given at the Funfield Recreation Center in Philadelphia.

A report was also made on the progress of Guild members in connection with their Art Alliance training. The first Wednesday of each month a number of the members go to Philadelphia to the Art Alliance where they are receiving instruction in the presentation of the one-act play.

Because of the conflict of activities the Guild learned that it will not be able to participate in the YMHA dramatic contest which will be held in April.

Announcement was made at the close of the meeting that election of officers will take place at the next meeting. Those present included: Hilda Leversidge, Mary Hufford, Dorothy Settle, Virginia Murray, Ethel Hartman, president, who presided, Archie Lummis, Austen Larson, John Ferguson, Walter Zelinsky, Douglas Gittens, Norman Foster, Robert Scherer and Harry Bush.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1938, by The Baltimore Sun)

Trouble in Tennessee

Washington, Mar. 15. ONE of the incidental phases of the TVA controversy, wholly aside from the deeper issues involved, is the effect upon the political career of Senator George L. Berry of Tennessee. As things stand at the moment there seems fair prospect that it has been abruptly ended, though, in these matters, sometimes it is hard to tell.

AT ANY rate, Mr. Berry is on a very hot spot politically. His sufferings undoubtedly are acute and he is getting a little sympathy from labor leaders, with whom he

IN CONFERENCE IN 1916

The Rev. J. Carpenter Zook, who was assigned as pastor of Bristol Methodist Episcopal Church, at the concluding sessions of the Philadelphia M. E. Conference in Reading, yesterday morning, is a graduate of Yew Theological School.

The new pastor, who succeeds the Rev. Norman L. Davidson has been serving as pastor of Centenary Church, Philadelphia, for the past two years. He has thus been transferred from the West to the North district of the Philadelphia conference.

The new appointee is married, and has one daughter, Miss Jean M. Zook, a student at Peirce Business College, Philadelphia.

The Rev. Zook entered the Philadelphia Conference in 1916. He has served at the following churches in the order given: McConnell Memorial, Philadelphia; Covenant, Philadelphia; Mt. Hope, Halifax, Wisconsin; Berwyn, Coxsack, Langhorne, Downingtown, and Centenary, Philadelphia.

It was from 1929 until 1932 that the Rev. Zook was in charge of the Langhorne congregation.

COUNCIL ADVISED PRESENT LAWS ARE OKEY IF ENFORCED

Borough Solicitor Says New Circular Ordinance is Not Necessary

COAL IS REGULATED

Opinion is That State Law Controls the Sale of "Bootleg" Coal

In opinions given Borough Council last night by Howard I. James, Borough Solicitor, no new legislation is necessary on the part of the borough to control the distribution of circulars or to regulate the selling of coal in the borough by other than resident dealers.

The Borough Solicitor told council that all that is necessary to control the distribution of circulars is the enforcement of the existing ordinance. A state law regulates the selling of fuel and all that is necessary is for a complaint to be lodged with the authorities and the necessary evidence presented.

The opinion of Mr. James disposed of two matters, pending before council. One was the request of the Mill Street Business Men's Association that council enact legislation which would prohibit the distribution of printed matter, other than newspapers, by means other than the United States mails.

Resident coal dealers of Bristol had asked council to enact an ordinance regulating the selling of coal in Bristol by other than resident dealers.

Mr. James questioned the validity of the proposed coal ordinance as it refers to only one class of fuel merchants.

Councilman Winter told Council that the ordinance committee had met with the borough solicitor and discussed both of the proposed pieces of legislation.

Councilman Thomas C. Clark, fifth ward, suggested that council have published in the local press a summary of the state law regulating the sale of coal, this summary to be prepared by the borough solicitor. The motion of Mr. Clark was adopted after it had been seconded by Martin J. Fallon.

Two ordinances were favorably acted upon by Council and both were passed without a dissenting vote.

One authorizes the Borough to enter into a contract with Doylestown Trust Company for the construction of a water main on certain streets laid out on plan of Landreth Manor, situated partly in Bristol Borough and partly in Bristol Township.

Landreth Manor is the tract in course of development on what is commonly called the Landreth tract, just the other side of Green Lane.

It is planned to lay the mains on Farragut avenue from its intersection with Bloomsdale Road or Green Lane to Manor Circle, and in, along and upon Manor Circle to its intersection with Cedar street, and along and upon Cedar street to its intersection with Manor Circle.

The other ordinance authorizes the acquisition by purchase of a tract of land in the Sixth Ward for the purpose of the erection and maintenance thereon of a steel water tower and tank. This tract of land is that on which the new water tower is now being constructed. The tract contains 8155 ten thousandths of an acre and it is being acquired from William Conca.

Councilman Warner presented a plan of lots of Landreth Manor as surveyed by Edward Pickering and asked council to approve said plans. Council recessed for a brief period so as to afford an opportunity to inspect the plans. Upon reconvening the vote for approval was unanimous. The motion was seconded by John H. Wisner.

Councilman Pfeifer then presented an agreement to be entered into between the Borough and the Doylestown Trust Company for the extension of the borough water mains to the new development.

The agreement calls for the cost of construction to be paid by the Doylestown Trust Company, said cost to be refunded by the borough when the annual rental for the use of water by the consumers equals 10 per cent of the cost of construction.

The ordinance was read and then the rules of council were suspended and the ordinance taken up for second reading and final passage. The vote was unanimous.

Councilman Winter presented the ordinance for the purchase of the tract of land on which the water tower is being constructed.

Council voted $50 appropriation each to Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion and also to Col. J. M. Gosline Camp, Sons of Veterans, to aid in defraying the proper observance of Memorial Day. The motion was made by L. C. Spring.

Police committee reported seven arrests during the month and the following disposition of the cases: Committed to the Bucks County prison, 3; discharged, one; held for court, three. One hundred and fifty-two lodgers were given shelter and two doors were found open after midnight. Eight are

TREASURE ISLANDS?

The geographical experts of the state department have hit on an interesting game. It is called Treasure Island, and the idea is to locate and claim for the United States certain island dots on the limitless Pacific which may belong to America but which foreign nations now hold under nominal and gratuitous sovereignty.

Secretary Hull is spurring on the fascinating studies of reports by whalers, explorers and traders, some over a century old, to establish which of the islands belong to America by virtue of prior discovery and use. Long regarded as worthless, they are now considered important because of Pacific air routes and tense international relations. The insular bonanza is said to embrace the Phoenix, Gilbert and Ellice groups (ever heard of 'em?) now claimed by Britain and some spots in the Antarctic region below South America, of all places.

Hunting for treasure islands may prove a profitable state department pastime if the islands thus reclaimed are to be turned in at trade bargain values to foreign claimants; but let us get away from the idea that we must capitalize everything of military importance in the Pacific. Rather give such unproductive real estate parcels away than further stretch the American life line into far flung waters. We have enough territory to cover now with our expensive armament program. We have unloaded the Philippines, for all practical purposes; why should we re-burden ourselves with territorial odds and ends tacked with an outlandish cover charge?

Practical demands of American security are plainly indicated in the direction of territorial limitation. If we are ever to get anywhere with our foreign policy, let us simplify rather than complicate it. We have no treasure like national security. Let us learn from imperialist nations that one cannot have peace with a territorial itch.

NEW UNIFORMS FOR SAILORS

New uniforms for Navy men are under consideration, the Navy Department has admitted. The present regalia of Uncle Sam's seafaring men harks back to the days when blue-jackets wore earrings and pig-tails.

The sailor's hat is still a pain-killer. His jumper is a buttonless pullover blouse. His bell-bottoms still lace up the back and button at the sides, supported by the thirteen buttons symbolic of the thirteen original States.

The Navy seems to be in earnest about changing all this, now that the Army has adopted a new uniform. Many suggestions for improving the sailor's costume have been officially studied in the past, but tradition always proved too strong to permit a change.

It must be admitted that the sailor would look better in a smarter and more natty tailored uniform minus the blouse and bell-bottoms.

In this free land you can't tell a family's social rating unless you know how often they change the sheets.

The girls will rummage in old boxes in the attic when they hear that hat pins appeared on spring bonnets shown to 1,500 experts at a New York fashion show.

Weekly Letter to Home-Makers

A Letter Written by Miss Edna M. Ferguson to Home-Makers will appear in each Tuesday's issue of The Bristol Courier. Through this medium Miss Ferguson will give many helpful hints to home-makers.

Dear Friends:

Certain foods seem to go hand in hand with certain seasons. It is a natural association, yet it is one of the fundamental reasons for menu monotony.

Thus the tempting citrus family is living in mind—and appetite—so consistently these days that we are inclined to overlook an all-year-round fruit that is important to health and menu variety.

Yet, it's the banana, described by the ancients in the days of Alexander the Great as "Fruit of the Wise Men." By instinct, it seems, they knew the healthful, nourishing values of this golden fruit. Today scientists have proved why bananas are so good for you.

Vitamins? The banana literally is bounding with Vitamins A, B, C and G, meaning that it is a good source of essential minerals and energy-giving substances. That is one reason why food experts are recommending bananas in March, since bananas in the diet are a valuable protective food.

South and Central American producing areas ship bananas to us the year round. The fruit is always an economical buy, since it varies little in price. Canny marketers buy bananas by the "hand," which means by the cluster of ten to twenty, thus getting them unbroken on the stem. When the fruit has not been broken and is cut off as needed, it keeps far better and the flavor seems enhanced.

There is one important "Don't" about storing bananas. Even government food specialists have taken a hand recently in broadcasting the message. Don't put bananas in the refrigerator, except to chill just before serving.

Since bananas are tropical in origin, they are supposed to be kept in an open bowl at room temperature, rather than plunging them into real isolation. The fruit tastes better and looks better when ripened this way.

Naturally bananas of varying degrees of ripeness come in one cluster and they are used accordingly for varying purposes. The fruit with green tips is used in many types of cooked dishes. At the all-yellow stage, or when the fruit is flecked with brown and full ripe, the starch has changed to easily-digested sugars. Then the fruit is ready to make its bow in salads, fruit cup, shortcake, with cereals, custards, cream or to eat directly from the skin.

As indicated, bananas are starring in a host of versatile new ways. Although they were a long time graduating from the single-purpose (or sugar-and-cream) role, they are making versatile strides now, cropping up in everything from milk shakes to sherberts. In fact, one authority claims that bananas may be served in more than 100 interesting ways. Here are some of them:

In salads, fruit cups, sandwiches, sliced with ready-to-serve or hot cereal; in fritters, waffles, or hot banana muffins; banana tea bread; as a vegetable, in banana scallops; pan-fried; banana milk shake; shortcake; broiled; banana cream and banana chiffon pies, baked and served with lemon sauce; in cakes; in meat loaf, for new zest and in numerous frozen delights.

The importance of salads in cold weather diet cannot be overestimated. Salad greens do build and maintain bodily vigor and resistance to minor ailments, particularly when they are linked with fruit and fruit-vegetable combinations.

The addition of long strips of banana to fresh crisp greens makes a fresh and attractive disguise for the necessary salad. Add a variety of other fruits, such as orange and grapefruit sections, slices of Avocado, thin slices of unpeeled apples, strips of pineapple, whole berries or cherries. Serve with French dressing.

In a vegetable salad bowl, use long strips of banana, with celery curls, onion, radish roses, wedges of tomato, or slivers of carrot.

Decorative salads always taste doubly good and so many hostesses will like to try banana salad with ruby dressing, made by stirring one-third cup cranberry jelly slowly into one-half cup cream cheese to make a smooth mixture. Cover and store in a cool place until needed. This is the ideal topper-offer for a salad of halved bananas and chopped nuts on crisp greens.

Or try the fruit slices spread in fan-shape, to combine with peaches, pears or apricots, using a perfect half of one of those fruits in a lettuce cup. Peel and cut banana lengthwise into three slices and place across front of salad plate. Spread slices open to resemble a fan. Serve with sweet or tart dressing.

As a well-balanced food, bananas truly make an important contribution to the well-balanced diet.

The Great Game of Politics

valued by Mr. Berry at "more than $5,000,000" were entirely worthless. "We are," the commission declared, "unable to conclude from the record and the physical facts that the properties are of value."

CLEARLY this report, together with the TVA investigation, which, whether made by Congress or by the Federal Trade Commission, is sure to further publicize the facts about the Berry claim, makes the question of his candidacy to succeed himself this fall particularly interesting. Until this marbled business came out, it had been assumed that the Senator would be renominated. Now no one can tell if he does not run it will seem that he has been driven out of politics by the marble incident. On the other hand, if he seeks "vindication" at the hands of the voters in the primaries and fails, as he easily may do, it will be worse than if he had just faded out of the picture. That, if he does not retire, he will have opposition has been assured by the commission report and the Morgan charges.

SHOULD MR. BERRY seek his "vindication" there will be great interest in the attitude toward him of two factors—the Roosevelt Administration, for which he has been a recognized spokesman, and a devoted follower; second, the labor leaders with whom he has trained and of whom he was supposed to be one. So far as the White House is concerned, though Mr. Berry owed his appointment as Senator last year largely to the Roosevelt influence, it isn't easy to see how Mr. Roosevelt could endorse him as he has, for instance, Senator Barkeley, in Kentucky, and Senator Pepper, in Florida.

IT IS true Senator Berry voted for the court-packing bill and certainly was the most articulate of the Roosevelt labor supporters in 1936. It is true, too, that he is as ardent a New Dealer as there is and that no one has more loudly denounced the "greedy rich" than he. However, unless he can get a clean bill of health to refute the Morgan allegation of intent to defraud and the commission's report on the worthlessness of his claim, the White House would have a hard time explaining why it wanted Mr. Berry back. The best judgment is that if Mr. Berry runs, Tennessee will be one State in which the President will regard the primaries as none of his business. In other words, he will abandon the unhappy Major Berry to his fate just as he already has abandoned the unfortunate Senator Dieterich to his, in Illinois.

ON THE labor side there had been a rift between Major Berry and the C.I.O. leaders before his marble leases became known. Mr. John L. Lewis ceased to love him very shortly after he got into the Senate, and the disposition among labor leaders generally is to feel that Mr. Berry, the first recognized organized labor leader to become a member of the Senate, has not received great credit on the labor cause. In fact, some of them feel more than a little resentful about the whole business. Of course, should the Major run and get "vindicated" without aid either from the White House or his fellow-labor leaders, returning to the Senate with what ex-Senator Swanson used to call a "six-year pulse," he would be in position to be very much more independent next session than he is this. At present, quite naturally, he is much subdued.

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL
Copyright, 1938
King Features Syndicate, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD—Since the premiere of "Tom Sawyer," every one sings the praises of the scenario for which John V. A. Weaver gets full screen credit. All the studios would like to put Weaver on their payrolls, but they can't because he lies seriously ill in Colorado. And it may be months or years before he can return to Hollywood.

Louise Hovick

return to Hollywood.

Gypsy Rose Lee, who quit her strip-teasing to come to Hollywood and become Louise Hovick, will be Zanuck's next player to offer a song on the screen. It will be in her current film, "Battle of Broadway," in which she appears with Victor McLaglen, Brian Donlevy and Esther Muir. Name of the number is "The Daughter of Mademoiselle."

Zanuck tried his best to get William Powell to sing in "The Baroness and the Butler."

The wildest sort of rumors gain currency in the film colony. On the set the other day we were asked to believe that the government is inspecting all the Hollywood swimming pools to see if any of the concrete basins could have been built with an idea towards future conversion into gun emplacements.

Samuel Goldwyn spent $35,000 staging the premiere of "The Hurricane" at the Carthy Circle. But none of the recent premieres have topped the extravaganza put on for the opening of "Hell's Angels" at Grauman's Chinese. The light bill alone was $25,000. They even had the big searchlights strung along the ridge of the Hollywood hills. The full cost of the premiere was around $65,000.

"Hell's Angels" also was one of the few films that got away with $10 admission prices for the premiere. "The King of Kings" sold out at the same high figure.

You feminine readers should be interested in this. Joan Crawford appeared at a dinner party at the Trocadero wearing a knitted evening jacket. Short and with a beaver effect. Star's gown underneath was a formal black chiffon. Knitting continues to be the rage in Hollywood. Joan, Mrs. Ray Milland, Della Lind, Mrs. Fred Astaire, Mrs. George Murphy and Mrs. Irving Berlin belong to a knitting club that meets on Thursdays.

Walt Disney can now show the doubters that "Snow White" rates among the top four pictures shown at the Carthy Circle here. "The Great Ziegfeld" still is No. 1. "The Good Earth" and "Anthony Adverse" also were in the big four.

In preparing "Gold Is Where You Find It," Warner Brothers were digging into the prize fight customs of 1860. Among other things, they discovered that the customers often were not allowed to leave the ring-side until all wagers had been settled.

Amusing if they tried to enforce this rule on the film gang at the Hollywood Legion stadium on Friday nights.

W. S. Van Dyke tells us that his next picture, "Northwest Passage," will be done in color. If it is it will be M. G. M.'s first venture in the new field. Van Dyke says he is captivated by the idea of showing Indians in war paint.

Spencer Tracy entered the Good Samaritan hospital for a minor abdominal operation. After his recovery, he and Mrs. Tracy will take an ocean voyage. . . . Natalie Buck-nall has bowed out as head of the M. G. M. research department. She was there for years. . . . The Pat O'Brien are adding a second story to their Brentwood home, which already is five rooms larger than it was when they bought it. . . . Bonita Granville got her first glimpse of a Hollywood night spot at the Club Bait. Her mama was along. . . . And Bruz Fletcher wracked his brain for songs that weren't quite so sophisticated. . . . Helen Mack and Jerry Wald at the House of Murphy for three nights in a row. . . . Director William Keighley has bought a house in Hawaii and insists he'll visit there four times a year. If he does, the China Clipper fare will cost him around $3,000. . . . Twentieth Century-Fox is preparing for tremendous public interest in the former manicurist, Arleen Whelan. They have taken 2,000 still photographs of her.

"EXTRA FARE" by Edna Robb Webster

CHAPTER XXX

Clarice stared at herself in the mirror, then clapped her hand suddenly over her mouth at the horrible realization of her position. Then her fight, instinct rose. All at once she felt stronger. She had come the most difficult part of the way alone. . . . She would manage the rest of it alone. Even Mervin Gaines, the mighty, should not conquer her. She might have to fight a long time, instead of accepting this apparently easy way to victory; but—she was used to fighting! A peculiar exultation enveloped her. Her face glowed with resolution. She must go out now to find him—tell him to take his opportunity to some other girl who had less courage than she had.

Instantly, she stood up and left the dressing room, leaving her bag where she had dropped it. She almost ran through the corridor and into the aisle formed by walls of swaying green curtains.

Mervin Gaines was just disappearing into the opposite corridor. She could not call to him the length of the car, above the roar of the train and with the admonitions of the QUIET placards staring her in the face. She hurried after him, breathing quickly. As she entered the far corridor, the door onto the platform clanged shut behind him. She would follow him, tell him she had changed her mind, tell him she could not keep her promise.

In her haste, she almost caught up with his slower progress, and entered the corridor of the observation car just as he was about to disappear around the corner. "Mr. Gaines," she called to him, softly, "Mervin."

But he did not hear her, and passed on into the car. Clarice would have followed quickly, but a strange vision loomed suddenly in the doorway of the drawingroom she was passing. Could she be dreaming, Clarice wondered. Surely, yes—that vision could not be Yola Renee! Yet surely she couldn't mistake that exquisite, radiant, haunting face.

Clarice stared, aghast, speechless, chained to the floor of the observation car corridor.

"You called—someone?" inquired, that deeply resonant voice to which Clarice had so often listened.

"Yes—why, yes," Clarice made a desperate effort to find her own voice. "I—I'm so terribly sorry I disturbed you. I was calling to Mr. Gaines. I wanted to speak with him for a minute."

"The gentleman who have—just passed?" Yola's exquisite eyebrows flew up with the interrogation. Just as if, Clarice thought, she were acting before a camera.

"You—why, you know him, too? Oh, I beg your pardon, but you are Yola Renee—are't you? So, of course, you would know your own director, Mervin Gaines. Did you know that he is traveling in the next car?"

Yola turned her head negatively. "No, I have been out of these tiny rooms so little. Then you, too, are the friend of Mervin's? So! Then, why not come in and chat with me for the minute? We," her smile was radiant, "should be the friends, also."

"Shall I call Mr. Gaines, first?" Clarice suggested eagerly. "I'm sure he doesn't know you are traveling on the same train. We have talked of you together. Let me bring him."

Yola held up her hands in terrified protest. "Never! For what do you suppose I make my escape from Hollywood," she smiled, while her voice denoted a fine scorn, "if not to escape the companies of Mervin Gaines and all the others? Ah! do come in a minute, my dear. And the name—I have not."

Clarice entered the little room, fragrant with flowers and perfume, luxurious with the famous actress's possessions. She moved in a trance; for she, Clarice Cole had entered the drawingroom of Yola Renee on a westbound extra-fast train. It just couldn't be real—this. Things were happening too fast for her. Her meeting with Mervin Gaines had been a miracle. There was no word for this meeting.

"I'm Miss Cole—Clarice Cole," she said timidly. Her usually vibrant voice was hushed.

"Perhaps you are wan—wan of the staff at Movie Arts whom I have not seen before? There are so many." Yola smiled apologetically. "Please do sit down, Miss Cole."

That "Miss Cole" thrilled Clarice as few things had in her varied experience. To dream of hearing Yola Renee pronounce her name! She sat down on the edge of the seat, facing her hostess, as that imperial person had indicated with a graceful turn of her white hand. Clarice felt awkward and ill-at-ease before her penetrating scrutiny—Clarice the beautiful and haughty.

"No," she admitted meekly, "I am on my way to Hollywood for the first time. I was going out to try for work as an extra, first; then I met Mr. Gaines on the train, and he has promised to help me." But she did not look as happy over it as the circumstance warranted, and her eyes were wreathed in their wordless appeal to Miss Renee.

"Oh—I see!" Yola nodded thoughtfully, half closing her eyes and tapping a delicate forefinger in the other pink palm. "I see."

Clarice felt as if she did indeed see right through her. But she was consoled by the thought that possibly her idol once had been placed in a similar situation.

"A maid in uniform entered from the adjoining compartment, astonished when she saw Clarice. So seldom in their travels had she ever seen her mistress entertain any guest. . . .

"Your pardon, Mademoiselle," she apologized solemnly, and disappeared. . . .

Gaines flung the last cigarette over the railing and watched it transcribe an arc in the darkness. He stood up and breathed deeply of the clear, light air as he gazed over the limitless expanse of sand. What a desolate country, he thought fearfully. There were some forces in the world that were stronger than human strength and cunning. A man was a puny thing ranged against these mobilized forces of nature. Gold in the desert—in these mountains—but of what value was a ton of gold to anyone lost in the desert? Not worth a drop of water. He preferred to take his gold from other sources, refined and alloyed and coined. It had value, then. It could command anything for a man, then. Not only water and shelter and pleasure, but champagne and comfort and indulgence.

He looked around the deserted platform and smiled to himself with vast satisfaction. It was good to know you could command every desire. He had given enough to life; henceforth, he was going to take what he wanted from it.

He squared his broad shoulders, drew his hands from his pockets and stepped inside. He must have given Clarice plenty of time to glorify herself and settle down. Sweet little thing—beautiful—but he would have to be stern with her. She was used to running her own little peanut stand, he could see that. All she needed was firm management, and he would have the kind of girl he required for himself and his business.

He proceeded into the next car, took his bag from lower 3, and returned to the dressing room. He glanced over at section 2. The waying green curtains were not buttoned.

Mose made his rounds of car 74X, saw that everything was in order, dimmed the lights and passed on into the next car forward, where an unoccupied drawingroom served several of the porters as a refuge for a few hours of rest. They took turns at checking on the signal boxes for each other.

The old lady in lower six had not summoned Mose for two hours. She must anticipate an early rising, he thought with amusement. She was the kind who would be up and dressed, hatted and gloved, long before the train reached its destination. Her baggage would be ready to snatch at a moment's notice; she would sit rigidly on the edge of her seat as if to leap forward. He would expect to see her at about five-thirty, anyway. And hoped that she would oversleep, vain as he knew that hope to be. It would decimate his duties if she did sleep for an extra hour.

THE GRAND

Twelve mammoth Hollywood sound stages were required to house the 38 spectacular sets designed by Art Director Cedric Gibbons for "Mannequin," showing at the Grand Theatre for the last times today.

The varied backgrounds for the picture, which co-stars Joan Crawford and Spencer Tracy, ranged from a dingy, three-story tenement to a multi-millionaire's penthouse, and a beach setting at Coney Island to backstage scenes from a musical show.

To furnish suitable locales for the swift-moving story, set designers also had to create the interior of a jail, a streetcar, exteriors and interiors of an ocean liner, a cottage in Ireland, an entire street from a New York tenement district, and one of swank apartments on Riverside Drive, the showroom of a smart woman's dress shop and an airplane, as well as street scenes in France and England.

HIGH SCHOOL FACULTY TO OPPOSE ALUMNI

This evening the faculty basketball team will doff their teaching outfits and array themselves in basketball fashion when they meet the Red and Grey Alumni.

The faculty five has been going full blast as they have been undefeated thus far. In their first major clash they toppled the varsity quintet by the narrow margin of a 23-22 score.

For the faculty, Coach Paul Brown and Manager Dave Herzler will start the same point-guarding quint that brought their association honor and glory. At the forward posts there will be Zeke Gillard, towering former Penn State star, and Captain Tom Coles, high-scoring commercial pedagogue. Versatile Steve Juenger, former Cherry and White co-captain, will also aid the college graduates. In the guard corners, Charlie Utz and Bing Quigley will protrude through brawny muscles to prevent an Alumni score. The faculty will also have such powerful reserves as "Buccaneer" Charlie Boyd, "Rabbit" Walter Rosser, and "Battler" LeRoy Booth.

The Alumni five have been preparing strenuously for their chance to defeat the teachers.

Preceding the nightcap tilt, the Varsity Girls will tangle with the feminine Alumnae sextet.

Probable line-ups:

Faculty	Alumni
Gillard	Mignoni
Coles	forward
Juenger	center
Utz	guard
Quigley	guard
Phipps	forward
Paglione	forward

BRISTOL EAGLES PLAN ACTIVE BALL SEASON

The Bristol Eagles, formerly known as the W. A. C. Jrs., are making plans to open the 1938 baseball season soon. The team is being managed by Norman Hetherington who will be assisted by two other prominent men interested in the rise of youths to greater heights in baseball.

This year's team, which is expected to be the strongest ever put out, will be out to shatter the mark set by the team managed by Sam Fiorrelli in 1935 when they won 19 games and lost but two.

Last year was the first time that the team finished below the 500 mark. With little material to work on and the resigning of several stars of former years, the team shared poorly and finished considerably below the 500 mark. However, near the end of the season with the signing of some of the former stars, the team began to go places and finished the season in gala style, losing to the strong Edgely team 7-6 in extra innings and winning from the Harrison Hawks 13-1 and in the last game of the season, Sam Fiorrelli pitched them to a 1-hit 4-0 victory over the strong Andalusia Wildcats.

The boys have been practicing in batting and fielding for the past several weeks and are very anxious to get into action. This far this season the following have been named: Sam Fiorrelli, Sam Belloni, Sam Carlo, Anthony Rotondo, Anthony Chabla, Anthony Palumbo, Anthony Cappella, Joseph Mimi, Carmen Ordo, Sebastian Pico, Mike Coster, Charles Bassett and Francis Kryvon. However, the team is still in need of a few more experienced players, and anyone wishing to join the team please see either Sam Fiorrelli, Anthony Rotondo, or Norman Hetherington or be present at the next meeting which will be held at 729 Pond street on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock.

Since the boys are rapidly getting into shape and are very anxious to get into action the team would like to hear from nearby teams either New Jersey or Pennsylvania averaging 18 years of age. All those desiring games please write to Anthony Chabla, 419 Washington street, Bristol, Pa.

The boys will hold a bake sale on March 26 in order to raise money to cover their expenses for the current season. The place had not yet been decided but will be given to the public as soon as it can be arranged.

LEAGUE TO MEET

A meeting of the Bristol Twilight Baseball League will occur tonight at eight o'clock in St. Ann's Club headquarters.

Seventeenth Anniversary Of Local Miss Observed

Miss Eleanor Corbett, 425 Buckley street, entertained a few friends at her home Friday evening, in honor of the 17th birthday anniversary of Miss Ada Giberson. Dancing and games were enjoyed. The decorations were in keeping with St. Patrick's Day. Favors were shappers and small baskets of candy. Refreshments were served. Miss Giberson was the recipient of many pretty gifts.

Those invited: Lyla Davidson, Doris VanSelver, Julia Dillorenzo, Mary Robinson, Bristol; Mary Zachero, Tullytown.

SPRINGFIELD VICTIM OF FALLSINGTON RUSH

By Louis Tomlinson

SOUTHAMPTON, Mar. 15 — A big spurge of scoring in the final chapter of the basketball season, the Orange and Black Fallsington quintet over a scrappy and fast Springfield aggregation here last night in the wind-up fray of the first round of play in the class "B" tournament. The final tabulations read 34-24, with the favorites on the long end of the score.

"RECS" DOWN COMETS BY TOTAL SCORE OF 4 TO 3

At the Bristol Recreation Center, the Bristol roller hockey team played the Croydon Comets, Sunday night, in their last game of hockey ever to be played on the Bristol floor. Due to this fact the Bristol boys decided to show their power, the result of this decision being a fast and furious hockey game with the Bristol boys coming out the victors with the score of 4 to 3.

The game was a close one from start to finish with both teams playing a hard game, which gave the spectators much excitement. When the final whistle blew the score was deadlocked 3 to 3, so the teams decided to play an extra period of five minutes in which the home town boys were the lone scorers. This finished the game with the score of Bristol, 4; Croydon, 3.

In the first period, Hutchinson was the first to score for the Croydonites, following within a very few minutes after this point, "Rabbit" Remer banged one in for the Bristol boys. This ended the first period with the score standing 1 to 1.

In the second period, Croydon took the lead again when Dennen shot one past Nelson Campbell, the Bristol goalie. There were no other points scored in this period.

Going into the last period the Bristol boys knew that they would have to open up their offensive attack with each of the Ritters scoring one each and Hutchinson scoring one for Croydon. Here the game ended with the score standing 3-3. Thus an extra period was necessary. In this period, Bill Ritter scored the only point, saving the game for the Bristol boys.

BENSALEM RALLIES TO DEFEAT NEW HOPE, 23-8

By Louis Tomlinson

SOUTHAMPTON, Mar. 15—Held to a slim lead throughout the entire first half and half of the final 16 minutes of play, Bensalem's Owls put on enough pressure in the closing chapter of their tilt with New Hope in the opening round of Class "B" tournament to down the Purple and Gold quintet easily, 23-8.

Both teams played very poor ball throughout the first half and the major portion of the last half, too. Erratic passing, walking continuously, poor shooting, and about everything else that goes with a sloppy ball game was thrown into this tilt to make it a riot of laughs.

Line-up:	Bensalem	Fd. G.	Fl. G.	Pts.

fects of beverage alcohol upon personal and social welfare, with salient facts relating to the deepening of the spiritual life," it was shown.

A short skit entitled "The Indispensable Union Signal" was enacted by the Misses Anna Heritage, Jane Rogers, and Laura Ellis. In this playlet the articles by Kathleen Norris, Dorothy Canfield, U. S. Commissioner of Education Dr. J. W. Studebaker, were referred to; and the full-page discussion of what is going on of interest in both Houses of Congress was reported, it being expressed with interpretive intelligence and insight. Each member of the Union gave information concerning the help the magazine offers in the way of better living.

A solo written especially for use at this meeting was rendered by Miss Ellis. An article on peace and youth, given by Miss Mary J. Haines, was vitally interesting. The following is a quotation: "Millions of youth the world over shackled in mind and their freedom gone, are doing the goose-step of militarism. Why shouldn't the youth of the land where freedom still exists, organize as forcefully and work as hard for world peace? The three nations of North America can form a peace axis which can dramatize the cause of international good will, and possibly counteract the vicious militaristic philosophy now threatening to make Democracy and Christianity only a memory."

At the conclusion of the meeting a social period was enjoyed, and refreshments served by the hostess.

traffic thereon, and since the location and operation of The Bristol Theatre, at Radcliffe and Market Streets, the traffic thereon has increased to such an extent that, with parking conditions, it is at times impassable.

4. The old Bristol Town House is located at the intersection of Market and Radcliffe Streets, the front thereof being on the building line of Radcliffe Street. The Building is eighteen feet two inches (18'-2") in width by twenty six feet three inches (26'-3") in depth, with concrete Platform in front, three and one half feet (3½') in width, and steps, three feet (3') wide extending out into Radcliffe Street. The Roadway on the West side is thirteen feet (13') in width, with sidewalk or pavement four feet four (4'-4") wide, and on the East side the said street is only eleven feet (11') wide, with a six foot sidewalk or pavement.

5. Garages are erected on the West side of Market Street from Radcliffe Street to Cedar Street, thereby restricting parking to the East side, with the result that cars parked on Market Street interfere with and obstruct entrance and passage from Radcliffe Street into said Market Street.

6. The entrance from Radcliffe Street into Market Street is so narrow that a truck or large vehicle cannot gain entrance therein without crossing the East Bound Traffic on Radcliffe Street, with resultant hazard and danger to public travel.

7. The Historic value of this structure is practically gone inasmuch as the clock, which was donated to the Borough and for which the building was erected in which to house it, as well as the old cells and entire interior have either been removed, torn out or destroyed, leaving only the unsightly old shell of the building remaining.

8. It is essential and necessary that this old building be removed for the safety and accommodation, not only of the local citizens, but the travelling public at large, for as it now exists, under present and changed conditions, it is an obstruction, a menace and a dangerous hazard to public travel, jeopardizing the life and safety of person and property.

9. Innumerable accidents have occurred by reason of the maintenance of this building at its present location, with resultant damage to person and property.

10. Your Petitioners therefore respectfully pray that your Honorable Body cause this building to be removed from its present location, either by demolishing it or removing it to some other location, and if you deem it best to preserve it then it can readily and at a small cost be removed to Borough property at another site, and we suggest the Borough premises at Pond and Malberry streets.

We again most earnestly urge and pray for the early removal of this dangerous obstruction, either by demolishing or removing it, for, due to the march of time and the progress and development of the Borough, conditions have so changed as to require its removal in order to meet such changed conditions and to accommodate and safeguard the welfare, safety and convenience of the travelling public.
